

Ski Camp in the Rockies 2013

ski-camp

Last week we had our ski camp at Loveland. They had a lot more runs open this year than last year as it looks like an excellent start to the ski season in Colorado.

I stayed out in Breckenridge, CO, which is about a half hour southwest of Loveland through Frisco. My brother has a timeshare he let us use and we stayed at the same place as last year, which is a nice condo. There were 4 of us guys there: Don, Fred, Paul and I. We'd eat breakfast there, ski all day, get dinner, hit the hot tub and then go to sleep basically... not a bad little schedule.

We'd meet at 8:30am at Loveland, have a meeting and get on the snow shortly after 9 usually. There were about 12 of us. Unfortunately, there were 2 people that got hit by snowboarders – Don and John. John got hit worse but it sounds like he's recovering. It's usually kind of dangerous skiing at any place that just opened for the season as many people aren't used to skiing and snowboarding.

Here are some pictures with some descriptions – enjoy!

-Tony

Original article: <https://www.skiwithtony.com/ski-camp-in-the-rockies-2013/>